PORTUGUESE GOVERNMENT MENACED BY EX-KING MANUEL'S FRIENDS, BACKED BY NAVAL OFFICERS

LISBON.—The government has been thrown into a panic by the discovery of a plot on the part of ex-King Manuel, now in London, to overthrow the regime of the republic and recall Manuel to the throne. The plot is more widespread than had been supposed. Following the arrest of fifteen conspirators in a secret meeting place here, comes the revelation that many of the naval officers are now antagonistic to the new government. Manuel was much of a favorite with many of the veteran naval officers. The officers friendly to Manuel have started the trouble not by opposing the wishes of the minister of marine in important respects. Jose Azevedo, former minister of foreign affairs, and Coutinho Chagas, also a former member of the monarchist cabinet, have been expelled on the ground that their presence in Portugal would constitute a danger for the new institutions.

MADAME PUHI WILL MAKE FIGHT TO KEEP HULA BEFORE PUBLIC

While Mayor J. J. Fern has remarked that the action of the dance-hall inspectors in denying the application of Madame Puhi for a license to run her hula resort at Kaplan park means the death-blow to the Hawaiian dance in Honolulu, the applicant herself is in a different frame of mind, and is far from one with hope abandoned.

Meeting defeat at the hands of the inspectors, who pointed out in their report that Madame Puhi's place had a bad reputation and was not policed as such a place should be, the woman has now hit upon a new scheme, and has started forth to lose no time in perfecting it. Time is money with her.

Yesterday she conferred with P. L. Weaver, first deputy city and county attorney, and immediately after the conference she started out to see about getting a theatrical license, having come to the conclusion that it would serve her purposes very well. It costs one dollar a night for such a license, which is issued by the city following his separation from his wife, for some sort of a national guards review, and that about 3:30 that afternoon he reported for work at the telephone company.

As he was working in the "trouble room," the attorney stated, the telephone rang for him. It was his wife. Over the phone she abused him. He realized that she was drunk. Some time in the afternoon, in moments of leisure, he cleaned his revolver, placing in the weapon when the cleaning work was done, eight bullets in the magazine and one in the chamber of the gun. Again the woman telephoned him and once more she abused him. He realized that she was intoxicated and hung up the phone.

Then the woman came. It was evening and he was still on duty in the "trouble room." She abused him again; they quarreled; she grabbed the revolver which lay on the table, saying that she would kill him. In the struggle the gun went off and the woman was killed.

This is the summary of the defense which will be relied upon, stated Larnach.

Several witnesses were put on for the prosecution this morning, but only one for the defense. Among the witnesses for the former this morning were Captain Baker of the police department, B. J. Botts, C. J. Edwards, Dr. Sinclair and J. W. Harvey. J. Kama, a hack driver, was the only witness for the defense.

Captain Baker and Botts testified, among other things, to statements made by the prisoner when he was arrested. Captain Baker testified that the man had cried he had killed his wife but that she had driven him to do it. Botts testified to having heard about the same statement.

The hack driver, the only witness so far put on by the defense, gave an account of the woman's acts during the afternoon. He stated that she was drunk. He heard her use the phone, he said, and curse as she talked over it.

At 12 o'clock the court took adjournment until tomorrow morning at 8:30.

and county treasurer on a permit from the sheriff.

Weaver informed Madame Puhi that if any license is to be issued to her that she may give hula dances, it should be a theatrical and not a dance hall license. He said as persons visit her place not to dance themselves, but to watch an exhibit of a dance, it was therefore in the nature of a show place and not of a dance hall.

Whether the sheriff will be willing to give his permission for such a license to be issued to Madame Puhi may be a question. When he was asked if he would grant the permit he said that he did not know, and that it would be best for him to talk it over first with the city and county attorney.

FOR A WOMAN'S SAKE

Gambling with death for the sake of a girl, two young men engaged in a strange contest in Berlin a few days ago. One of the contestants, a student of philosophy named Weil, was so severely hurt that he is not expected to recover. Weil and his friend, a student of technical science, were in love with the same girl. Seeing no way out of the dilemma, they decided to meet the girl, arranging that he to whom she should first speak was to shoot himself. When the meeting took place Weil was the first to whom the girl spoke and shook his hand. The two students took their leave of the girl as soon as possible, and sought out a street with empty building plots. Here Weil fired two revolver shots into his body, the student looking on.

Police Notes

Coroner Rose will hold an inquest today over the remains of K. Take, a Japanese who attempted to take his life about a month ago at Moanalua railway station, the shot entering his neck, from which wound he died at Queen's Hospital last Monday.

To serve six months at the city and county prison, was the sentence passed upon Vicente San Juan by District Magistrate Monsarrat, following his trial and conviction upon a charge of larceny in the second degree. The Filipino is declared to have stolen some clothing from a Korean residing near the territorial experimental station.

Yes Kyung Soo, Korean, placed under arrest yesterday by Acting Chief of Detectives Kellett, charged with forgery in that he is alleged to have uttered two checks, each calling for payment of $40, was granted more time in which to plead, when arraigned before Judge Monsarrat at district court this morning. His case will be brought up on next Tuesday morning. The names of local business men are said to have been affixed to the checks.

The list of automobiles operated in the city and county of Honolulu is growing to a marked extent with the returns on file at the office of Sheriff Jarrett today. Chief Clerk Asch reports licenses to the number of 1356 issued to date. Within the past month a large number of motor trucks have served to swell the list. The prediction was made today that the number of machines on this island would total 1400 by the close of the year.

The name of the "mysterious Chinese" who is alleged to have been present at a conference with Sheriff Jarrett, Deputy Sheriff Rose and other police officials, on the Sunday morning preceding the big Chinatown raid, is still a bone of contention over which opposing counsel wrangled and wrestled for two hours this morning at the trial of 43 alleged Chinese gamblers, which for the past three days has been occupying the attention of District Magistrate Monsarrat's court. Straus and Rawling subjected Detective Apana to a grueling cross-examination while he was on the stand. Two Chinese informers whose names had been learned were called to testify regarding their connection with the police department in the raid on the Yee Hop premises. The case it is believed will be finished tomorrow.

CHARITIES PLAN WHOLESALE AID OF GIRLS

Miss Lillian Moody, social work expert for the Associated Charities, has under investigation the cases of 12 Chinese, Portuguese and Hawaiian girls between the ages of 15 and 18 years, who are attempting to secure work in stores and homes through the organization. Although the charities has done considerable work along the line of securing employment for girls and women since its organization, that is said to be the first time that so large a number of cases have come up for consideration of one time.

Financial trouble in the home seems to be the reason for these girls seeking work, according to Miss Moody. For instance, the father of two of the girls is earning but a mere pittance each month, and has a family of several children to support. These conditions have driven the girls to seek work and, while working, they are anxious to find time in which to attend school. Reasons of this nature apply to nearly all the other applicants. Miss Moody was successful in securing housework for some girls a short time ago, but at this time there appears to be no positions vacant. She has taken the opportunity to request all business houses of private homes in need of girls, nurses, cashiers or housemaids, to communicate with her.

THE CLARION

COOKING THE CHEAPER CUTS

Just because the chefs of the great hostleries of the United States and Canada would scorn to embark upon their menus such dishes as "Filet of Neck," "Branded Flank," and "Priced-off of Brisket," sundry millions of housewives keep right on telephoning the butcher for ribs, loin, leg, shoulder, porterhouse, tenderloin, or upper round.

And so it might go on were it not for a great awakening due to a campaign of education. The lesson being taught is: The cheap cuts are good and easily prepared for the table. The much despised neck contains as much food value as the loin, and at one-sixth the price. The neck, flank, plate, brisket, rump or upper chine of beef are all juicy cuts, rich in flavoring and needing only proper cooking to be desirable foods.

Mutton nowadays is a meat hard to sell in the market, yet it is a meat of big food value and easily prepared. By the aid of the fireless cooker, the housewife should find the purchase of mutton a dividend paying investment, and the same holds true in the case of the entire category of despised cuts of beef and "sheep."

The day is not far distant when every kitchen, be it ever so humble, will be supplied with a fireless cooker of some kind, and the expenditure of gas or coal will not have to be reckoned so closely that the cheap cuts of meat will be avoided because it costs so much to "cook them tender."

The use of the fireless cooker does away with the objection often heard that the cheap meats are costly to prepare—as far as fuel is concerned. As to the flavorings added to these meats for variety, enough of the various kinds to last an ordinary family for a year can be purchased for a dollar.

Meats that are to be used for soup may be selected from the cheaper cuts, such as neck and brisket, shin and shank. These cuts are good because of the gelatinous material found there. The soup meat is allowed to stand in cold water, and is cooked below the boiling point, as the object here is to draw out all possible flavors and extractives. Take, for instance, meat stock: Two pounds of meat, and bones, and two quarts of cold water. Cut the lean meat in small pieces; this will expose a large amount of surface to the water, and the juices are more easily drawn out. Brown one third of the meat in a hot frying pan, in marrow fat, not tallow. Place this with the remaining meat, bones and fat in a large pot. Add water and let it cook for an hour. Heat gradually to the boiling point, then lower the heat and cook slowly from 3 to 4 hours, and cool quickly. A soup will be made to the top which should be removed, as it gives the soup the chief value.

A common way of cooking these meats is by boiling them. Meat is to be boiled is plunged into boiling water for 15 minutes, then covered until tender at the boiling point. This latter cooking does well done in the fireless cooker, and at the simmering point need not bubble on its surface, the water in which such meat is cooked may be used for soups by the addition of rice, barley or vegetables.

Another good method is making stew. The meat is cut in small pieces. Some of the meat is seared in a hot pan, as the browning adds richness to the stew. The bones and meat are covered with cold water and brought to the boiling point, and cooked until the meat is tender. Here again the fireless cooker is useful, as the best stew is one that never reaches the boiling point.

county attorney, in which he held the enlisted men, stationed here for a term not less than a year, were paid, so far as residence is concerned, notwithstanding that they are still hold a technical residence where and are only stationed here for their capacity as a soldier.

Commissioner Kupila expressed himself doubtful of whether or not the opinion would hold when considered in the light of section 5 of the civil laws of 1913, being the civil service statute, the particular section mentioned, setting out the qualifications necessary for persons seeking positions under the civil service. Other commissioners agreed with him that it is possible that the action would alter the opinion of Weaver, and to put the matter beyond a doubt it was referred to the deputy city and county attorney.

October 25 has been decided upon as the time for the examination of applicants for jobs. At 1 o'clock of that day the examinations will begin at the Central Grammar school. All applicants must have filed their applications before 10 o'clock on that day to be entitled to take the test. Chairman Wirz estimates that there will be 100 up for examination. Many of them already have put in their applications. The name of the examiner is being withheld.

Sheriff Jarrett reported the suspension of the three detectives who were relieved from duty several days ago and their subsequent reinstatement.
